To Clean Parasols.

From the Woman's Home Companion. Do not remove the cover from the frame to launder your parasol. Instead, open it out and wash the covering thoroughly, using brush, cool water, and some good white soap. After rinsing, set it in the sun to dry, if the material is white; in the shade if the material will fade. The wire frame will not rust, and your parasol will be found beautifully clean and dainty. It is well to wash it again in this manner in the fall, and not put it away in a soiled condition. Wrap in tissue paper, then in newspaper.

They have been house hunting, preparatory to taking up their future residence here in October, and found it quite difficult to find just what they want. They have decided to rent temporarily, and later will build their own home. They have not selected any house yet, but this will be done after they reach New York.

Gen. Leonard Wood, U. S. A., has arrived in Washington, and has taken up his duties as Chief of Staff, succeeding Gen. J. Franklin Bell, retired. They will spend the next three months there, and then come into the city for the winter.

The Bolivian Legation has a new first secretary in Senor Don Jose Aguirre-Acha, who is charge d'affaires in the absence of the Minister. She flourishes at all seasons, does the last-minute woman; but she is at the height of her tribulations at vacation time, unless it be that Christmas divides honors with this season.

Just now she is going away, possibly to Europe. She has known for months that she is going to Europe, that she will want certain kinds of clothes, some special things for the steamer, such as cushions and little handy bags, that she will need guide books, and various other necessities, absolutely essential, if the trip is to be comfortable, and furnish its due quota of pleasure. Yet the week before she sails arrives, and her clothes are not ready, her guide books not purchased, not a cushion or a bag provided. There is a frantic scurrying for dressmakers, urgent appeals to stores to send things by special delivery, piteous requests to friends to come and help her out. It becomes imperative to get, even this last week, the eyeglasses her physician has been telling her for a year she must have. She goes aboard the steamer as the gangplank is being drawn up, almost on the verge of hysteria, not knowing whether she has half the things she needs or not.

It makes no difference what sort of a vacation trip she is taking, the experience is the same. And it is the same every year. She never profits by her past mistakes. When she is going to have the dressmaker, the last-minute woman is never ready. The date has been set months in advance, yet the dressmaker arrives, and sits and holds her hands, while

HORNET MAY SAIL

WITH AMMUNITION

Government Will Not Detain Yacht.

The Federal government has declined to detain the yacht Hornet, which was formerly in the navy, at New Orleans, where she has been loaded with a cargo of arms and ammunition consigned to the Estrada faction at Bluefields.

The question was laid before the Department of Commerce and Labor late yesterday afternoon by the collector of customs at New Orleans, who reported the facts to the department. He said he had a stock of arms and ammunition on board, but that there was no evidence to indicate that the shipment constituted "an expedition" within the meaning of the neutrality laws.

In such cases the State Department has taken the attitude that an "expedition" of arms and ammunition was a legitimate act of commerce, whereas the fitting out of an armed "expedition" in an American port would be a violation of the neutrality laws. In view of the fact that the collector at New Orleans held that there was no evidence to prove that the Hornet was an "expedition," there was no other course possible but to allow her to clear.

The Hornet was sold by the Navy Department about two weeks ago to Nathan Stern, of New Orleans, for $3,100.

DRURY TO BE RETIRED.

He is a native of Massachusetts.

Pay Director Drury's retirement will result in the promotion of Pay Inspector John A. Muhl, in charge of the navy pay office at New York, to the grade of pay director.

WATT GETS TRANSFER.

Naval Constructor Richard M. Watt, construction officer at the Norfolk Navy Yard, has been relieved and directed to report at the Navy Department on August 1 for special duty in the Bureau of Construction and Repair.
